Dairy farms are an important part of rural economies in the United States. Mid-sized dairy farms generate $34,000 per cow annually in the local community and support the infrastructure upon which other family scale farming operations and rural economies depend. In recent decades new farmers have not entered the profession at rates that offset the loss of retiring producers. Because the average age of farmers is 59 years old and many do not have an identified successor, farm loss persists in many communities.

Dairy Grazing Apprenticeship (DGA) is working to reverse this trend by matching current and aspiring dairy farmers, providing comprehensive training and support, and developing models of equity building, investment, farm start-up, and farm transfer.

Initially developed as a state-wide program in Wisconsin, DGA is now an independent nonprofit organization with a National Apprenticeship under the U.S. Department of Labor-Employment and Training Administration. DGA addresses barriers to farm ownership for aspiring dairy farmers and creates options for existing farmers who want to develop employees, expand their dairy grazing business or transfer the farm upon retirement. The program was developed with support from USDA-NIFA's Beginning Farmer and Rancher Development Program (2010, 2011, 2014, and 2017).

- DGA is a National Apprenticeship that can operate in any state.
- DGA is an independent 501(c)3 non-profit organization.
- DGA consists of 4000 hours over two years. It combines on-farm employment and mentorship under an approved Master Dairy Grazier (3,712 hours) with related instruction (288 hours).
- Apprentices earn while they learn. They gain skills, knowledge, experience, relationships, and confidence during the program and graduate capable of owning and operating or managing a grazing dairy farm.
- DGA provides financial consulting services to program participants and has successfully implemented equity building, farm start-up, and farm transfer models.
- DGA currently has 165 approved Master Dairy Graziers in 11 states: Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Minnesota, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Wisconsin. The program has 40 active Master-Apprentice pairs, 23 Journey Dairy Graziers, and more than 150 Apprentice Candidates seeking to be hired.
